Introduction

The second edition of the Style Guide incorporates the amendments suggested by the senior officers to its first edition.

The Style Guide is developed mainly in the context of the English language used in the Audit Reports. However, these are equally relevant to other official reports and communications in the Indian Audit and Accounts Department, including the Inspection Reports.

The Style Guide consists of advice on good writing, guidance on drafting, list of conventions, common errors and care in use of words and phrases.

The provisions in the Style Guide are aimed at securing corporate consistency in the reports and at obviating the need for repeated redrafting, quite often guided by the individual styles. The Style Guide is not necessarily a manual for writing good English, but is issued as means to securing clear, simple and easily understandable language of our reports.

The Style Guide by itself does not ensure clear and concise language of the audit reports consisting of unambiguous short sentences and use of sample words. It is not, thus, intended to supercede the writing flair of the officers of the Department. Yet, it attempts to standardize the commonly used words, expressions and numbers etc., which must be uniformly followed.

I. General advice on good writing

- 1.1. Clear writing depends on clear thinking. To draft well a writer must know just what meaning he wishes to convey.
- 1.2. You can usually say what you want in short everyday words. This is especially important if you are writing about a complex subject. Readers will need all their attention to grasp what they are being told. They don't want to spend time grappling with obscure language as well.
- 1.3. Orwell observed 'A scrupulous writer in every sentence that he writes will ask himself at least four questions. What am I trying to say? What words will express it? What image or ideas would make it clearer? Is this image fresh enough to have an effect? And he will probably ask himself two more: Could I put it more shortly? Have I said anything that is avoidably ugly?' So think what you want to say, then say it as simply as possible. Keep in mind the following elementary rules:
 - avoid cliches and slang;
 - never use a long word when a short word will do;
 - if it is possible to cut out a word, always cut it out;
 - never use a foreign phrase, a scientific word or a jargon word if you can think of a straightforward English equivalent. Use the language of everyday speech, not that of accountants, computer experts, bureaucrats and lawyers;
 - avoid a desire to impress. Your job is to help readers understand you readily and precisely and not to show them how clever you are; and
 - do your best to be lucid. Simple sentences and short paragraphs help to break down slabs of text into manageable chunks. Avoid complicated constructions and gimmicks.

How long is long?

- 1.4. For writers, long sentences are difficult to construct well. The longer they get the more risk there is of ideas becoming confused. For readers, long sentences are hard work.
- 1.5. So how long is long? Readers seem to be comfortable with an average sentence length of 15-20 words in most circumstances. Most writers are capable of writing such sentences without much effort. Occasionally a longer sentence is necessary, but beware of using such long sentences regularly. Sometimes, a very short sentence can be useful to punch home an idea. It catches the reader's attention and stops him skimming over important facts.
- 1.6. Use short paragraphs – none should be longer than a third of a typed page. Use indents freely to list main points and get your message across more clearly; make more use of side-headings; and give paragraphs minor sub-headings.

II. Drafting reports

Objectives of reports

- 2.1. Reports are the principal means by which the IA&AD meets its primary objective of providing Parliament and State Legislatures with independent information and assurance. They are written for the Parliamentary reader or the PAC, and beyond that for the wider public. They are not written to be read as a dialogue between the IA&AD and the audited body and are not therefore reports in any 'expert to expert' category.

So the reports need to get their essential messages across clearly and simply to an audience who probably do not need or wish to know the details and complexities surrounding the subjects examined.

- 2.2. For every report, meeting these objectives means putting a premium on:
- having a strong, clear report structure;
 - avoiding a temptation to include as much as possible of the information and analysis gathered during the investigation to support IA&AD findings and conclusions;
 - concentrating less on narrative descriptions of how things are done and more on why they are done, how well they are controlled and the results achieved; and
 - used hard evidence and telling examples to reinforce the messages in the report
- 2.3. All drafts must pay close regard to the reporting objectives summarised above. It is not acceptable for drafts to be submitted on the basis that as much as possible should be included and that streamlining, selection and re-arrangement will be catered for by subsequent redrafting up the line.

The IA&AD style of report writing

- 2.4. Writing audit reports is not so different from writing any other kind of informative writing. To give our readers a comfortable ride, use verbs actively, write short sentences and keep to the essentials. The more complex the subject the simpler the style should be. Our aim should be reports which set out the facts in a series of short crisp paragraphs.

Drafting this way is not always easy. Everyone will have to be ruthless in revising their own material and rejecting what is not up to scratch. Always look critically at your finished work to see if you can answer 'yes' to the following questions.

Structure

Does it have a strong, clear framework which presents the material logically and to best effect?

Is it clear?

Does it get its main message across on first reading?

Will the language be clearly understood by the reader?

Is it free from jargon?

Simple and brief?

Does it concentrate on the main issues, avoiding aspects which are peripheral?

Does it give only the essential facts?

Does it include only essential words and phrases?

Accurate?

Is the information correct?

Are the findings supported by evidence?

Is the writing free from errors in grammar, spelling and punctuation?

Complete?

Does it give all the necessary information?

Does it answer all the important questions?

Balanced and fair?

Does it present both sides of the argument?

Does it reflect good performance and good VFM by the audited body as well as criticisms?

Are the audited body's views properly reflected?

Is the language used moderate and non-provocative?

Constructive?

Does it consider the feasibility of recommendations made?

Does it look forward to improvements rather than back at faults and weaknesses?

Length of reports, paragraphs, reviews and appendix

- 2.5. As a rule of thumb, maximum length of the report (excluding overview and appendix) should be 120 typed pages. The limit can be relaxed where the number of reviews is four or more in bigger states. Overview should not normally exceed about eight to ten typescript pages. The existing limit of (30) pages appendix/annexure has been relaxed to (65) pages. Transaction audit paragraphs should not normally exceed two pages. Except All-India reviews, other reviews should be confined to 20 typed pages. The 20-page limit for performance audits could be relaxed by 5 pages depending upon the availability of material.

Structure of reviews

- 2.6. There is no ideal drafting model which is suitable for all reviews. A rigid format could become cumbersome and unimaginative. The main consideration is how the facts, figures and conclusions on a particular subject can most effectively be communicated and what form of presentation best meets that purpose.

- 2.7. There are two main structures adopted:
- a 'straight through' review incorporating recommendations in the main text;
 - a review preceded by 'highlights' and ending with 'conclusion' containing recommendations
- 2.8. Long reviews of about 15 pages should normally be preceded by 'highlights' containing the main findings. The 'highlights' should be concise (not more than 3 pages), but should sufficiently bring out the main issues to provide the reader with a clear view of the purpose and results of the review.
- 2.9. The 'highlights' is not intended to be free standing, mini-report and should contain the minimum of description and narrative. It is not always necessary for matters dealt with in the 'highlights' to follow the same sequence or be under the same headings as in the main text of the review; sometimes, for example, it may be desirable to arrange the 'highlights' according to the materiality of audit findings. However structured, the 'highlights' should cross-refer to the relevant paragraphs in the report.
- 2.10. The review should be free-standing – ie. capable of being read without the need to refer to other source material or other published information. It is a condensed description of main issues, findings and conclusions; and supporting facts. The essential approach should be:
- bring out the really important matters
 - play down the less important;
 - omit the unimportant; and
 - generally be selective and concentrate on IA&AD analysis rather than on descriptions and narratives.

Appendix

- 2.11. If the main text of audit report involves detailed analysis of complicated issues, or statistics, these should normally be set out in an appendix. But don't use appendices simply to display how much information you have collected. They are not a vehicle for including descriptions of detailed systems or procedures operated within the audited body. Material should always be relevant and support the case being made. Appendices need to be drafted and edited just as carefully as the main text. As a rule of thumb, if information on less than five items is to be provided, the details may be incorporated in the main text itself, rather than as an appendix.

Diagrams, tables etc

2.12. Full use should be made of facts, figures and relevant examples to give life to the report and to point the reader to significant issues and conclusions. Diagrams, charts, graphs and tables should be used to help get across important messages; and these should be where appropriate included in the text, not only in appendices. These can save a lot of explanation and - provided they are simple and well laid out – can often convey more in a short space than stretches of narrative.

Glossary

2.13. Abbreviations in reports should be kept to a minimum. Where five or more abbreviations (or specialised terms) are necessary in the report then all abbreviations and terms used should be listed in a glossary at the end of the report.

III. IA&AD conventions which must be used

Abbreviations

- 3.1. Keep the use of abbreviations to a minimum, particularly where they are likely to be unfamiliar to the reader. Observe the following rules:
- all abbreviations are potentially an affront to the reader since they are used for your benefits and not his;
 - do not use abbreviations for bodies which are referred to only a handful of times in a report – the reader will have forgotten what they mean and will have to look back to check up;
 - if you must use an abbreviation write the words in full on their first appearance followed by the initials in brackets;
 - ring the changes by referring to 'the Ministry', 'the Department', 'the Commission' etc;
 - normally avoid using abbreviations in the 'overview' and 'highlights', particularly if the words in full are explained only in the text;
 - abbreviations that can be pronounced do not need the definite article (e.g., UNESCO). All other abbreviations do (e.g., the CAG, the GOI)

Active not passive

- 3.2. Wherever possible write actively. Overuse of passive verbs is one of the most common causes of unclear writing. So say 'Audit examined this account' and not 'an examination of this account has been carried out by Audit'. To convert passive into active change either the verb: 'expenditure was reduced by Rs. 10 lakh' to 'there was reduction in expenditure of Rs. 10 lakh' or the subject: 'payment was authorised by the Executive Engineer' to 'Executive Engineer authorised the payment'.

Apostrophes

- 3.3. Use the normal possessive ending's after singular words or names that end in s: boss's, Jones's. Use it after plurals that do not end in s: media's. Use the endings' on plurals that end in s: companies' – including plural names that take a singular verb (e.g., Reuters')

Capitals

- 3.4. A balance needs to be struck between using too many and too few capital letters. Here there can be no general rule, but two pieces of advice may be given:
- The particular and the general: Use a capital for the particular and a small letter for the general. For e.g., 'it is a road leading out of Barakhamba Road'
 - Consistency: Whatever practice you adopt, be consistent throughout any document you are writing.

Chapter numbers

- 3.5. Use roman numerals (I, II, III) for chapter numbers.

Dates

- 3.6. Do not put commas in dates. Use any of the following formats:
- 26 May
 - Monday 26 May
 - 26 May 2003
 - 26-30 May 2003
 - 26 May – 5 June 2003
 - 2002-03
 - 26/5/2003

Figures

3.7. Never start a sentence with a figure; write the number in words instead. Use figures for numerals greater than nine and for all numerals that include a decimal point or a fraction. Use words for whole numbers from one to nine. Fractions should be hyphenated (two-thirds). Spell out lakh and crore. Do not use abbreviations for lakh and crore except in tables.

Do not mix decimals and fractions; thus use either 3 ½ lakh or 3.5 lakh but not both.

Use commas appropriately while writing figures (12,34,56,789.99).

Number greater than 100 lakh should be expressed in crore and numbers less than 100 lakh in lakh.

In case of comparison same units to be used, e.g. lakh or crore.

Use 2,000-3,000, 2 lakh – 3 lakh (not 2-3 lakh). But, 'costs rose from Rs. 2 lakh to Rs. 3 lakh' (not Rs. 2 lakh – Rs. 3 lakh).

- Figures in table and narration should be in same unit
- Use of figures or words should be uniform for comparison e.g. 2 and 12 or two and twelve.

Font

3.8. Use font size of 12 in the text of report. Even in tables and charts do not use font size of less than 8.

Page numbers

3.9. Use Roman numbers (i, ii, iii, ...) for the part of the report containing contents, preface and overview of the report. Use Arabic numbers for the main text and appendices in the report. Never use alpha-numerals (12A, 12B) for page numbering.

Paragraph numbers

- 3.10. Never use alpha-numeric coding (3.2A.1) for paragraph numbers. Also avoid a mix of Roman-Arabic numbers (3.4.(iv)).

Use Arabic numerals for paragraph numbers. The first digit of the paragraph number should indicate the chapter number. For e.g., the first digit of a paragraph in Chapter III should be 3. The paragraphs and sub-paragraphs should be numbered as 3.1, 3.1.1 etc.

Do not use more than 4 levels in paragraph numbering (e.g. 3.1.2.1, 3.1.2.2. and so on.

Percentages

- 3.11. Write per cent rather than % and percentage rather than %age. A range of values should be expressed as 10-12 per cent, not 10%-12 or 10 per cent – 12 per cent.

Do not use a percentage, a proportion, or a fraction when you mean some, as in: substantive testing proved worthwhile in a percentage of cases.

Preface

- 3.12. Introduction to the report should be titled 'Preface' and not 'Prefatory remarks'.

Singular/plural

- 3.13. There is no rule about whether a verb that agrees with a single collective noun should be singular or plural. However, use 'a number are' and 'the number is'.

- In using collective nouns, the plural is more suitable when the emphasis is on the individual members and the singular verb when it is on the body as a whole. For e.g., the committee were unable to agree and a committee was appointed.
- Do not use a singular verb where two singular nouns are linked by 'and' unless the linked words are so closely associated that they might also be hyphenated

- For words linked by 'with' use singular verb if the subject is singular. The Minister together with the Secretary is coming.
- When each is the subject of a sentence, the verb is singular and so is any pronoun. For eg. each has a room to himself.
- Certain nouns are often misused. Remember agenda is singular and data is plural. Thus it is wrong to write 'data that is four to twelve years old is of limited use'.
- The IA&AD and Government Departments should always be treated as plural nouns.

IV. A to Z of common errors and weaknesses

A or An

- 4.1. Use an in place of a when it precedes a vowel sound, not just a vowel. That means it's 'an honor' (the h is silent), but 'a UFO' (because it's pronounced you eff oh). Some people think it's wrong to use 'an' in front of an abbreviation (like 'MRI') because 'an' can only go before vowels. The sound is what really matters. It's 'an MRI' (you pronounce it 'em ar eye').

Adverbs

- 4.2. Put them where you would in normal speech, which is usually after the verb.

Among versus Between

- 4.3. The simple rule will rarely fail you: use between for two things, among for more than two.

Alternative

- 4.4. Strictly this means one of two, not one of three, four, five or more. Options should be used when more than two are meant.

Ampersands

- 4.5. Should be used in three ways:
- When they are part of a company or body (IA&AD)
 - When two names are linked to form one unit (Trade & Industry).
 - In R&D

Anticipate

- 4.6. Does not mean expect but to use in advance. Probably best avoided since it is often misused.

Basically

- 4.7. Almost always useless. Qualifiers such as basically, essentially and totally rarely add anything to a sentence; they're the written equivalent of 'Um'.

Circumstances

- 4.8. Stand around a thing: therefore correctly it is in the circumstances not under them.

Colon

- 4.9. To be used:

- To mark more sharply than a semicolon the antithesis between two ideas:
This year the department is short of funds: next year it will have money to burn.
- To precede an explanation or to introduce a list of series:
The Government Account consists of 3 parts: the Consolidated Fund, the Contingency Fund and the Public Account

Comma

- 4.10. Use commas sparingly and as an aid to understanding. Too many in one sentence can be confusing.

Generally used:

- to mark off less important statements within a sentence:
- to break long sentences into easily understood parts:
- to separate items in a list.

Compare

- 4.11. X is compared with Y when drawing attention to the difference (compared with last year's poor results, 1986-87 was a good year): X is compared to Y when stressing their similarity (as in 'shall I compare thee to a summer's day').

Compound

- 4.12. This word is often misused. It does not mean to make worse, to multiply or to complicate. It means to mix together, to settle by mutual agreement or to condone for a consideration.

Probably best avoided.

Comprise

- 4.13. The meaning is 'composed of'. DTI comprises Trade and Industry: Trade and Industry make up (not comprise) DTI.

Continual versus Continuous

- 4.14. Continual means 'happening over and over again'; continuous means 'happening constantly without stopping'. If you're continually on the Internet, it means you keep going on; if you're continuously on the Internet, it means you haven't gone off at all.

Convince

- 4.15. Is not a synonym for persuade. The C&AG was persuaded to award a 10 percent increase: he was convinced of the wisdom of doing so only after the wastage rate had risen to 100 percent.

Currently

- 4.16. What's wrong with now? Or even leaving it out altogether and letting a present-tense verb do the trick? It is currently not available is the same as It is not available or It is not yet available.

Decimate

- 4.17. Strictly this means to reduce something by a tenth, not to destroy a large proportion. Probably best avoided.

Different

4.18. Different from not to or than.

Disinterested

4.19. Means impartial and not uninterested. 'Uninterested' means unconcerned or indifferent.

Due to

4.20. Its three main meanings:

- Owed to, as in: Rs. 1 lakh of fees is due to the IA&AD
- Arranged or timed to, as in: the VFM Report is due to be completed in May.
- Because of: when used to follow a noun, as in: the cancellation, due to the election, of not it was cancelled due to the election.

Effectively

4.21. Means with effect: if you mean in effect, say so. 'The matter was effectively dealt with in committee' means it was well done in committee.

'The matter was, in effect, dealt with in committee' means it was more or less attended to in committee.

E.g. versus i.e.

4.22. The abbreviation e.g. is for the Latin exempli gratia, 'for example'. i.e., Latin id est, means 'that is'. They're not interchangeable. Both abbreviations should be followed by a comma.

Estimated

4.23. Avoid 'an estimated Rs. 10 lakh', use instead 'about Rs. 10 lakh' or 'it was estimated as Rs. 10 lakh'.

Factor

- 4.24. A hackneyed word; the expressions of which it forms part can usually be replaced by something more direct and idiomatic. For e.g., instead of saying 'His superior training was the great factor in his winning the match' use 'He won the match by being better trained'.

Farther versus Further

- 4.25. Though very few people bother with the difference these days, there is a traditional distinction: farther applies to physical distance, further to metaphorical distance. You travel farther, but pursue a topic further.

Finally

- 4.26. Do not use finally when you mean lastly or at last. Thus, it is illogical to write Public Expenditure finally fell below Rs. 100 crore because it may rise above it again in the future.

Flaunt

- 4.27. Means display: Flout means show contempt for.

Foreign words and phrases

- 4.28. Avoid them unless there is no everyday English alternative.

Full stops

- 4.29. A full stop marks the natural conclusion of the small package of information that has been offered in a sentence.

Do not use full stops at the end of headings or in abbreviations. Full stops should be used to mark the end of a sentence and mark a stronger break between ideas than a comma, semicolon or colon.

Get

- 4.30. Be sparing with this verb. Thus: BALCO did not get privatized: it was privatized.

Hopefully

- 4.31. This adverb means 'full of hope'. Thus you may begin writing a draft report hopefully, but never write: Hopefully, the VFM investigation will be finished in 1989. It is better to say: If all goes to plan (or with great good luck)...

However

- 4.32. In the meaning nevertheless, not to come first in its sentence or clause.

Incorrect

Correct

The roads were almost impassable. However, we at last succeeded in reaching camp.

The roads were almost impassable. At last, however, we succeeded in reaching camp.

When however comes first, it means in whatever way or to whatever extent.
For e.g.,

However you advise him, he will probably do as he thinks best.

However discouraging the prospect, he never lost heart

Hyphens

- 4.33. Use them in the following words:

- Fractions
- Most words beginning with anti and non: anti-government (but note anticlimax, antitrust non-combatant, non-payment (but note nonaligned, non-stop)
- A sum of money followed by the word worth: Rs. 10 lakh-worth of stocks
- To avoid ambiguities: a little-used vehicle (low mileage) and a little used-vehicle (an old Mini)
- Separating identical letters: Book-keeper, re-entry, pre-eminent
- Nouns formed from prepositional verbs: build-up, call-up, get-together, shake-up.

A list is attached of commonly used words, which do not require a hyphen.

Information overload

- 4.34. As discussed earlier, do not provide all the details you have just because you have it. Information overload can distract readers' attention from the main issue. For e.g., while making a comment on the non-utilisation of a building constructed at a cost of Rs. 55 lakh for more than 3 years, do not discuss salary of Rs. 1.25 lakh paid to a watch and ward for the security of the building.

Inverted commas

- 4.35. If an extract ends with an exclamation or question-mark, put the punctuation before the closing inverted commas: The Director said to him, 'Haven't you finished that draft yet?'

If the question or exclamation mark is part of a lengthy sentence within which the quotation stands, put it outside the inverted commas: Why did the Director say, 'Haven't you finished that draft yet?'

-ise or -ize?

- 4.36. Always use -ise for it will never be wrong, whereas -ize sometimes will be: criticise, solemnise etc.

It's versus Its

- 4.37. There's no shortcut; all you can do is memorize the rule. It's with an apostrophe means it is (or, a little less often and a little less formally, it has); its without an apostrophe means belonging to it.

Jargon

- 4.38. The C&AG's Reports are not addressed to IA&AD staff or to the audited bodies, but to the Parliament and the public jargon must therefore be avoided, especially legal and technical terms and those conventional phrases invented by government departments that are unintelligible to outsiders. You may have to think harder if you do not use jargon, but you can still be precise. You should ask yourself – will the reader understand this term properly? Could I replace it with everyday language? Should I still use the term but explain it?

Read through your completed draft, and try to remove all jargon to make the result intelligible to everybody.

Less and fewer

- 4.39. Less qualifies degree, quantity or extent and takes a singular noun. Fewer relates to number and takes a plural noun. Thus: less spending; less distance; fewer miles, fewer opportunities.

Literally

- 4.40. Use the word literally with care, and only where what you are saying is literally true. 'We were literally flooded with work' is wrong because the flood is a metaphorical one, not an actual deluge. Don't use literally where really, very, or extremely will do.

Majority

- 4.41. Do not use the major part or the majority when most should be adequate: reserve them for occasions when the difference between a majority and a minority is significant. Thus, the majority of CIPFA students is likely to vote for the proposal.

-ment

- 4.42. Avoid adding -ment to verbs indiscriminately. Do not use words like schedulement, reallocationment etc.

Metaphors

- 4.43. Metaphors can be useful, enabling ideas to be conveyed succinctly without tedious explanation. But used indiscriminately they become stale and lack precision. Orwell put it as follows: A newly invented metaphor assists thought by evoking a visual image, while, on the other hand a metaphor which is technically 'dead' has in effect reverted to being an ordinary word and can generally be used without loss of vividness. But in between these two cases there is a huge dump of worn-out metaphors which are merely used because they save people the trouble of inventing phrases for themselves.

Multiple/negatives

- 4.44. Avoid using multiple negatives in a sentence. For e.g., 'common' could be used instead of 'not uncommon'.

Nature

- 4.45. Often simply redundant, used like character. For e.g., 'Acts of hostile nature' could be replaced with 'Hostile acts'.

None

- 4.46. None takes a singular verb. So does neither X nor Y, unless Y is plural. For example, neither the minister nor the officers have done it – where the verb agrees with the element closest to it.

Nor

- 4.47. Although there are other possibilities, you can't go wrong if you use nor only after the word neither: instead of 'Keats did not write novels nor essays', use either 'Keats did not write novels or essays' or 'Keats wrote neither novels nor essays'. (You can, however, say 'Keats did not write novels, nor did he write essays')

Only

- 4.48. Put only as close as possible to the word it qualifies if it could reasonably be thought ambiguous elsewhere. Thus: these sections produce accounts only in September. To say that they only produce accounts in September could suggest to a careful reader that in September they do nothing else or that in other months they do something other than 'produce' them.

Optimum

- 4.49. Optimum is not an alternative for best. It should be used only of the product of conflicting forces. An auditor's optimum work rate is not the fastest he can do, but the rate which reconciles in the most satisfactory way the conflicting needs for speed, accuracy and a satisfactory result.

Paragraphs

- 4.50. Long paragraphs can confuse the reader. One thought – one paragraph.

Parameter

- 4.51. Parameter is a mathematical term with a precise meaning. It is normally better to use boundary, limit, framework or condition.

Particular

- 4.52. This particular word, in many particular circumstances, serves no particular purpose. Give particular attention to the particular prospect of cutting it out.

Per

- 4.53. Avoid the habit of using per instead of according to, as in per manufacturers' guidelines.

Plus

- 4.54. The use of the word plus where and or with would be better is a bad habit picked up from advertising copy. Try to limit plus to mathematics, and use and or with where they're appropriate.

Presently

- 4.55. Does not mean at present but soon. Example: Presently the department will act on their decision. Probably best avoided.

Punctuation

- 4.56. The specific punctuation marks are dealt with in the relevant section of this guide. However, remember that:

- The only purpose of punctuation is to make clear to the reader what you want to say:
- Keep punctuation marks to a minimum.

Semicolon

- 4.57. No hard and fast rules here, except to encourage consistency throughout a report. Remember that a semicolon is simply a stronger version of the comma.

Shall versus Will

- 4.58. Will is usually the simple future indicative: 'This will happen'. 'You will be surprised'. Shall is related to the subjunctive, and means 'Let it be so', which you might see in legal or business writing: 'The employee shall produce all required documentation', 'A committee shall be appointed' and so forth. (They're not just predicting that the employee's going to do it or the committee is going to form; they're declaring that they must, or at least should, happen.) But this rule works only for the second person (you) and the third person (he, she, it, they). The first person — I and we — reverses the rule, so 'I shall do it' means I'm going to get around to it, while 'I will do it' shows a mustering of resolve (let it be so).

Sentences

- 4.59. These must be short and have unity of thought.

Short words

- 4.60. Should always be used in preference to long words unless there is a good reason not to. Use the language of everyday speech. Not that of auditors. Accountants. Lawyers. Bureaucrats and computer experts.

So

- 4.61. Avoid using 'so' as an intensifier, as in 'It's so hot', unless there's a that clause

(though the word 'that' needn't appear in less formal writing): For e.g., 'It's so hot that the asphalt is melting'. Usage of 'so' instead of 'very' is a no-no.

Spelling

- 4.62. Always use English spelling and not American. A list of commonly mis-spelt words is attached.

That versus which

- 4.63. The relative pronoun that is restrictive, which means it tells you a necessary piece of information about its antecedent: for example, 'The word processor that is used most often is WordPerfect'. Here the that phrase answers an important question: which of the many word processors are we talking about? And the answer is the one that is used most often.

Which is non-restrictive: it does not limit the word it refers to. An example is 'Penn's ID center, which is called CUPID, has been successful so far'. Here that is unnecessary: the which does not tell us which of Penn's many ID centers we're considering; it simply provides an extra piece of information about the plan we're already discussing. 'Penn's ID Center' tells us all we really need to know to identify it.

It boils down to this: if you can tell which thing is being discussed without the which or that clause, use which; if you can't, use that.

Unnecessary words

- 4.64. Use adjectives and adverbs to make your meaning more precise but beware of using them for emphasis alone. Very is often used so freely that it ceases to have any meaning: it must be used discriminatively to be effective. Necessarily and inevitably are overworked: they often add nothing to the meaning of the words they qualify.

The knife may also be wielded on many other words and phrases: For e.g., Track record (record), cutbacks (cuts), large-scale (big).

Verbs

- 4.65. Comments made in the side-margins and tables should be complete English sentences. Avoid a temptation to save space by omitting verbs like is, are, was, were, etc. in the sentences contained in tables and side-margins.

While

- 4.66. Avoid the indiscriminate use of this word for and, but, and although. Many writers use it frequently as a substitute for and or but, either from a mere desire to vary the connective, or from uncertainty which of the two connectives is the more appropriate. In this use a semicolon best replaces it. For e.g., instead of 'The office and salesrooms are on the ground floor, while the rest of the building is devoted to manufacturing' use 'The office and salesrooms are on the ground floor; the rest of the building is devoted to manufacturing'.

Who versus whom

- 4.67. While it's possible to memorize a rule for distinguishing who from whom, it's easier to trust your ear. A simple test to see which is proper is to replace who/whom with he/him. If he sounds right, use who; if him is right, use whom. For example: since he did it and not him did it, use who did it; since we give something to him and not to he, use to whom. IT gets tricky only when the preposition is separated from the who: Who/whom did you give it to? Rearrange the words in your head: 'To whom did you give it?'

Would versus should

- 4.68. A conditional statement in the first person requires should, not would. For e.g., I should not have succeeded without his help.

The equivalent of shall in indirect quotation after a verb in the past tense is should, not would. For e.g., He predicted that before long we should have a great surprise.

Vernacular Words/Latin Words

- 4.69. Vernacular words like 'khul' – small open irrigation channel, 'chak' development – command area development, 'khadarja' road, 'nautor' land – Government land allotted to villagers for cultivation, are used, such words should be shown in italics and explained as a footnote, if required. Similarly Latin phrases and words used in English like viz. vide, bona-fide, ibid, suo-motu, mala-fide, de-facto, prima-facie, pro-forma, ex-gratia, ex-post-facto in-toto, inter-se etc should be shown in italics.

Common Mistakes

- 4.70. Write officer concerned/'department concerned' instead of 'concerned officer'/'concerned department'.

The words 'balance' and 'rest' (remainder) are both nouns. It is incorrect to say "The balance payment was to be withheld" or "The rest 80 per cent was to be withheld". The correct forms are either "The balance was to be withheld" or "The rest was to be withheld" or "The remaining payment was to be withheld" etc.

Except for accepted and short expression like "and/or", use of the slash (/) between the words should be made in a very restricted way. e.g. instead of saying 'Short/non-payment', we should say 'short payment' or 'non-payment'. Similarly instead of writing "any increase/decrease over/below the schedule of quantities of a contract", we should write "any increase over or decrease below the schedule quantities of a contract". Instead of writing "The benefits of subsidy/ incentive/MSP provided by Government" we should write "The benefits of subsidy, incentive and MSP provided by the Government".
